5 Tactical Recommendations for Alfido Tech

1

Double Down on West & East Regions

West and East together account for 61% of revenue yet only 61% of the customer base. Targeted digital advertising, dedicated account managers, and localised promotions in these markets will protect the revenue base and drive upsell among existing buyers.

2

Combat Q1–Q2 Revenue Slumps

Revenue in Jan–Feb dips by 30–50% relative to Q4 peaks — a pattern consistent across all 4 years. Off-season bundles, loyalty reward redemptions, and early-renewal incentives in January–April can flatten the seasonal trough and improve cash flow predictability.

3

Prioritise Technology Cross-Sells & Bundles

Technology is the highest-revenue category (36.6%) with Phones, Copiers, and Machines as standout performers. Bundle printers with ink/paper subscriptions and offer extended warranty upsells. Concurrently, consider phasing out the bottom-20 SKUs (each generating <$5 lifetime) to reduce catalogue complexity.

4

Fix the First-Class Shipping Experience

First Class shipping shows the longest average delivery days despite commanding a premium price — a clear misalignment of expectation vs. delivery. Audit the carrier SLAs, enforce fulfilment benchmarks, and offer Standard Class incentives (e.g. free shipping over $150) to redirect volume to a more reliable tier.

5

Develop Corporate Account Tiers

Corporate customers represent ~30% of orders but show a measurably higher AOV than Consumer buyers. An account-based pricing programme with volume tiers, net-60 payment terms, and a dedicated Customer Success Manager can significantly grow Corporate wallet share and reduce churn risk.
